“Dorian, you have such goodness and nobility,” said Mr. Chavez. “You are a jewel in a sea of illusion.”

“Thanks, Mr. Chavez,” responded Dorian. “But, Mr. Chavez, what exactly is nobility?”

Mr. Chavez recalled his experiences as a young boy. His life was rich in character, but poor in material comforts. He remembered waking up every morning to the smell of his Mom making warm tortillas on their old, gas stove in the kitchen.

His Mom would call, “Caesar, it is breakfast time, mijo. You have a long day of studies ahead of you.

Remember, my son, although I want you to earn good marks in school, the end of education is character. I would rather that you grow up to be a noble man with average intelligence than a genius without nobility.”

Mr. Chavez recalled innocently asking, “Mom, what is nobility?”

His Mom answered, “My dear son, nobility means that you follow the human values that your father and I teach you, such as truth, righteousness, peace, love, and nonviolence.”

TRUTH,
RIGHTEOUSNESS,
PEACE, LOVE
AND NONVIOLENCE

“It means that you give up selfish qualities, such as greed for money and lust for power, and use your knowledge and abilities in the service of others.”

USE YOUR KNOWLEDGE AND ABILITIES IN THE SERVICE OF OTHERS

“Look at us mijo, our home is simple, our clothes are plain, and we do not have extra money to spend. However, we have big hearts, and we spread love and joy to each other and everyone we meet. Thus, although we are poor in one way, we are rich in character.”

Mr. Chavez was lost in memories until Dorian called out, “Mr. Chavez!”

Mr. Chavez immediately responded, “Sorry, son, I was recalling some of the best days of my life with the best teacher I ever had. Dorian, even though I am your Math and Science teacher, what is it that I say is more important than these subjects?”

“Human values,” answered Dorian.
“You say that Math and Science without human values are useless subjects.”

MATH AND SCIENCE
WITHOUT HUMAN VALUES ARE USELESS SUBJECTS

“Do you believe me, Dorian?” asked Mr. Chavez.

“Of course,” replied Dorian.

“There is your answer,” smiled Mr. Chavez. “You are a living example of nobility.”
